A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Jewell, well known as a writer as "Sol," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 2d N. Y. Cavalry and of the 13th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:
"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Kidney and Bladder Pills. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies."
—Solomon Jewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1892.
These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

STYLISH EMBROIDERY.

Something About the Very Latest Thing in Embroidery.

A Combination of Houlton Braid with Embroidery—Excellent Model in the Shape of a Cushion—Corner for Table Linen.

The very latest thing in needlework is a combination of the houlton braid with embroidery. Heretofore we have had the lovely lace work, and we have even seen the braids used as braids simply, but their use for applique and their combination with long and short stitch are both new and immensely effective.

The work is simple in the extreme and requires no knowledge beyond that which every woman has. The secret of success lies in the design and in the selection of colors. If you are careful that both of these are good, the rest will surely follow, and you may be assured of success.

The cushion shown in the first drawing is excellent as a model, and can either be exactly copied or modified to suit your needs.

The original has just been completed by a clever woman, who makes all her own designs. The foundation is pale sage-colored furniture sateen. The central figure is worked in long and short stitch with old pink Turkish floss, and the center is filled with fancy stitches of the same. The antennae-like lines that run from it were first drawn with a brush, then covered with the braid, neatly pasted on. Each one of the sections is buttonholed irregularly with old pink floss around its entire edge, and each joint is entirely worked over with the same. The combination of tones is charming, and the rapidity of the work is an immense advantage in these days of hurry and hustle, when one has hardly time sufficient to indulge in the love for making pretty things.

The second illustration shows one corner of a tea table cover, and is all white.

The material is heavy linen, a fine quality of what is known as "butcher's linen," and all the work is done with white wash silk. The large figures in the corners are purely conventional, and are worked with heavy silk. The braid is put on precisely as already described, but with white in place of colored floss.

The edge of the cloth is finished with a wide hem, simply hemstitched, and the whole has the rare merit of laundering perfectly and without need of special care.

Beautiful as colored embroidery unquestionably is, it has the disadvantage of requiring the greatest care. Even the wonderful wash dyes must be treated with respect; and, as every housekeeper knows, it is difficult to remove tea and coffee stains without hot water and more soap than they allow. The pure white covers are, therefore, steadily growing in favor, and as this one has the merit of being effective without being exacting, it deserves a hearty recognition from all busy women folk.—N. Y. Recorder.

Where the Baby Sleeps.

Cradles have gone out of date for babies, whose little brains are injured, we are told, by the rocking motion. Whether this is so or not certainly no one need long for the pretty swaying arks of earlier days who sees the lovely beds provided for the infant of '94. One is like a great basket mounted on cross-legs of wickerwork. At the head there is a sort of tripod which supports a canopy that does not come over the crib at all, but merely falls to the floor in tied-back curtains much like those at a draped dressing table. The body of the little bed is entirely covered with three rows of broad lace sewed to a lining that is fitted over the wickerwork. There are bows of white ribbon at the lower corners.

Black Hosiery Is Doomed.

In Paris the cry has gone up: "No more black stockings," and the shops in Paris are eager to please, and obedient to the voices of their fashionable customers, exhibit now heaps of silk and thread hosiery, all of the same color, but infinitely varied in shades, from the dark gray called steel gray to the palest dove tint; a few white articles are seen among the lot, and far away, in a remote corner, a thousand pairs of black silk stockings, open-worked, as thin as the webs of the most artistic spider, lovely, but disdained and snubbed by their friends of old, are given away almost for nothing.

OUTING COSTUMES FOR GIRLS.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

The Spider's Oration.

Come, children, who fancy we spiders are fools, and view the lace houses we build without tools. I'm just about finishing one at the lattice. Come quick, and I'll operate for you, all gratis. And where do you think are my shuttle and loom?

You see no machinery here in the room. No silk thread nor cotton, and yet you all see this wonderful fabric is woven by me.

It's all in my little round abdomen here. No steam apparatus to burst, never fear! It's hard to explain to you just how I do it. Look sharp, and perhaps your bright eyes will see through it.

The costume Cinderella wore at her first ball was wrought by an ancestor, robe, veil and all. With hues of the rainbow the fabric was dyed.

She captured the prince, but you know how it ended.

What would a fine lady not give to possess a spider web drapery over a silk dress? The weaver, if human, would win a great name. While artisan spiders no merit may claim.

For the unobtrusive and skillful and wise. We try to relieve you of troublesome flies. We're hunted and scouted with duster and broom.

And all our fine tapestry swept from the room. When questions, "What spiders were made for?" arise.

Some wiseacre answers, "They're made to catch flies!" "And what were flies made for?" he answers again. "To feed hungry spiders. I'm sure this is plain."

Now this is chop logic, or reason in rings. Observe how I amputate this beetle's wings. A plain, honest worker content with his lot. Now, have I not proved you the spider's no fool?

I've shown him a weaver the best in the nation. An architect planning his own habitation. A maker of traps to catch fishes with wings. A surgeon accomplishing wonderful things. A skilled decorator of mansion and cot. A plain, honest worker content with his lot. And last, you'll admit, little children—I know it, I've proved him an orator, scholar and poet.

A Self Peeling Banana.

Much interest can be excited round the family table by the following simple trick: Challenge everybody to peel a banana without touching it. Naturally they will consider such a feat impossible, and you will then proceed to show them how easy it is. Procure a bottle with a neck about the thickness of a banana, and drop into it some alcoholic spirit. Set the spirit alight, and while it is burning place in the neck of the bottle the smaller end of the banana, on which you have secretly made four longitudinal incisions. To the utter amazement of the company, the banana will gradually disappear into the bottle, shedding its skin as the invisible force drags it down. The trick is performed by purely natural means. The fire in the bottle produces a partial vacuum, and the outside atmosphere presses the fruit into empty space.

Light, Darkness and Light.

This is a little trick which handy girls can perform as well as handy boys. In fact, there being dolls in the game makes it quite appropriate for girls.

Cut out of pasteboard two dolls and attach to the hands of each one a goose quill tube. A goose quill toothpick will be just the thing because the ends are already sharpened, as they should be. With two strips of paper and a drop of paste they are easily held in position, as shown by the cut. Then fill four-fifths of the quills with sand. The remaining fifth of one tube fill with gunpowder and the other with phosphor. Bits of paper can also be used for the filling in place of the sand. Try to put on a knowing air as you exhibit your tools to your spectators and surround the thing with all the mystery you please. Have the candle lighted by one of the persons in the room, which must not be too brilliantly lighted to make the candle light insignificant. Hold your dolls, as you see by the illustration, opposite the candle flame and mumble something. As soon as the powder becomes ignited there will be an explosion, which blows out the light, while a moment later the phosphorous blaze will relight the wick of the candle.

It is a very amusing trick and causes great merriment among an audience of young people.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Where She Would Come Out.

A teacher asked a bright little girl, "What country is opposite to us on the globe?" "Don't know, sir," she answered. "Well, now," pursued the teacher, "if I were to bore a hole through the earth and you were to get in it at this end, where would you come out?" "Out of the hole, sir," replied the pupil, with an air of triumph.—Exchange.

Inate Citizen—I want to make complaint against a man whose barn faces mine on the alley between Ham street and Bone avenue, near Lazarus court. Police Official—What is the trouble? "He piles all kinds of rubbish out there. We could keep a clean alley if it wasn't for him. He mixes his ashes and garbage and throws it half the time over against my barn. I've talked to him about it time and again, and it doesn't do any good." "What's his name?" "Higginson." "Higginson? Does he live on Ham street?" "Yes." "In a big brown house?" "Yes. That's the man. I want to enter a complaint against him. I want him prosecuted." "My friend, you'd better go back home. Higginson's the health officer."—Chicago Tribune.
